

Eli Schille-Hudson is a classical, electric, and steel string guitarist based in Bloomington, Indiana. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in classical guitar from the Indiana University Jacobs School of Music, where he studied as a Jacobs Scholar and taught as an associate instructor. He teaches and performs regularly around the midwest and his native Pacific Northwest, most recently appearing in solo recitals for the Bellingham Festival of Music and the Great Spaces Concert Series in Topeka, Kansas. Eli has been fortunate to study with some of the world's finest pedagogues, including such renowned artists as Maestro Ernesto Bitetti, Nigel North, and Tilman Hoppstock.
